Colleagues,

Welcome to Washington, D.C. for the 110th APSA Annual Meeting!

This year's theme, Politics after the Digital Revolution, asks political scientists to consider the impact of digital technologies on politics and on how we study and teach politics. We know it's a more substantively focused charge for the meeting than in previous years, but its importance has clearly increased over the past year. We asked you to consider issues such as government collection of data about private citizens, the role of big data in policy processes, the explosion of social media to document major world events, the use of data in political campaigns, efforts of governments to censor information, and new security challenges of information warfare. The response is exciting: at this meeting's theme panels and roundtables, you will find scholarship that considers politics after the digital revolution across the dozens of organized sections that define the broad substantive and methodological perspectives of the association. Not least of all, you will find active engagement with leading practitioners in public service, the mass media, think tanks, and the business community.

It has been a real pleasure to work with APSA President John Aldrich over the past year. We encourage you to attend the Presidential Address, "Did Hamilton, Jefferson, and Madison 'Cause' the Government Shutdown? The Institutional Path from an 18th-Century Republic to a 21st-Century Democracy," on Thursday, August 28 at 6:15 p.m. in Salon 3 in the Marriott Wardman Park Hotel. The Opening Reception follows immediately at 7:15 p.m. next door in Salon 2. Please also attend the Annual General Membership Meeting on August 30 at 11:30 a.m. in Thurgood Marshall Ballroom West in the Marriott Wardman Park Hotel. APSA governance is important to all of us; it depends on participation by committed members. The meeting will provide an update on APSA and an opportunity to express your views, to thank President Aldrich for his service, and to welcome President-Elect Rodney Hero.

We extend our sincere thanks to the program committee members for their hard work and good judgment assembling a terrific program. We know you will appreciate the results. Thanks too, to ASPA Executive Director Steven Rathgeb Smith and his outstanding staff for their professionalism and grace in pulling it all together.

Enjoy the meeting!

In Memoriam

Jim Burns had a profound impact on political science, American government, and his beloved Williams College. We express sadness at his passing in July, 2014. He worked to strengthen our institutions and processes of government; he was a committed teacher and mentor, President of APSA, and winner of the Pulitzer Prize and National Book Award.

In 1948, Jim, along with Jack Peltason, wrote their book, Government by the People with Prentice Hall, now Pearson. This collaboration produced a book that has remained a market leader through 25 editions. As the current authors and publisher of Government by the People we appreciate his high standards and will miss him.

American Government: Introduction

Marc Landy • Sidney M. Milkis

American Government: Enduring Principles, Critical Choices, 3E

Landy and Milkis enliven the study of American politics and government by presenting American politics as a dramatic narrative of conflict and change. The authors adopt an American political development approach in order to show how the past, present, and visions of the future interact to shape governing institutions and political forces. There is a strong emphasis on the role of ideas, and two key political development principles – path dependency and critical choice – are central to explaining how and why the past affects the present and future.

Comparative Politics

Jeffrey Kopstein • Mark Lichbach • Stephen E. Hanson

Comparative Politics

Interests, Identities, and Institutions in a Changing Global Order, 4E

Twelve in-depth case studies of the EU and countries across the globe combine insights of cutting-edge institutional analysis and deep study of national histories to explore how the concepts of interests, identities, and institutions shape the politics of nations and regions. The country studies trace the global and historical contexts of political development and examine the diverse pathways that countries have taken in their quest to adapt to the competitive pressures of twenty-first-century globalization. The country studies constitute the overarching framework of the text, addressing the larger question, “why are countries ruled and governed so differently?”

ISBN 9780521135740 | 630 pp. | 10 maps, 18 tables | $79.99

Research Methods in Political Science

Sean Gailmard

Statistical Modeling and Inference for Social Science

Statistical Modeling and Inference for Social Science is the premier choice for affordable content focusing on analytical methods in the social sciences. Examining the connection between statistical procedures and social science theory, Gailmard gives attention to developing core statistical theory as a set of tools to model and assess relationships between variables, while explaining how social scientists express and test substantive theoretical arguments in these models.

WELCOME TO OUR TOWN

Now, please send us your students.

In addition to our degree-seeking students, American University here in Washington, DC educates many talented students from other excellent universities. We provide them an extraordinarily active, impactful semester in DC.

Example: The Washington Semester Program. Since Harry Truman was president, the Washington Semester Program has provided students with rigorous academic and experiential learning. Our faculty's local connections provide students from throughout the world with exceptional access to Washington's decision makers and policy leaders. And superb internships.

The program continues to evolve as well. Public Health debuts in Spring 2015 as the 12th program track in the Washington Semester Program.

Our Graduate Gateway program also features several tracks including Applied Politics, and International Affairs.

We have many opportunities for your students — and some for you, too! —to take full advantage of Washington, DC.

Stop by Booth 108 to get more of the story. Faculty and staff, who proudly live and work here in the nation's capital, gladly will fill you in (as well as share some local lore and tips to use during your visit to our town).

ABOUT CIRS

Established in 2005, the Center for International and Regional Studies (CIRS) at the Georgetown University School of Foreign Service in Qatar is a premier research institute devoted to the academic study of regional and international issues through dialogue and exchange of ideas, research and scholarship, and engagement with scholars, opinion-makers, practitioners, and activists.

CURRENT RESEARCH INITIATIVES

The State and Innovation in the Persian Gulf

This initiative looks at how regional states foster technical and scientific innovation in their societies to bring about knowledge-based, post-oil economies.

Transitional Justice in the Middle East

This multi-disciplinary research initiative examines the unfolding experiences of transitional justice across the Middle East in the post-uprising era.

The Evolution of Persian Gulf Global Cities

By examining the dynamics of urban configurations in the Gulf region (the GCC, Yemen, Iraq, and Iran), this research initiative aims to understand the city as a cultural and social space.

Social Currents in the Maghreb

CIRS launched this research initiative in order to investigate variations in social movement mobilization in Tunisia, Libya, Morocco, Mauritania, and Algeria before, during, and after the Arab Spring.

Healthcare Policy and Politics in the Gulf States

The objective of this research initiative is to determine the economic, political, and social implications of healthcare management in the region.

It is a puzzle that while academic research has increased in specialization, the important and complex problems facing humans urgently require a synthesis of understanding. This unique collaboration attempts to address such a problem by bringing together a host of prominent scholars from across the sciences to offer new insights into predicting the future. They demonstrate that long-term trends and short-term incentives need to be understood in order to adopt effective policies, or even to comprehend where we currently stand and the sort of future that awaits us.

OUR NEIGHBORHOOD.

GW's Elliott School of International Affairs is located just steps from some of the most important policymaking institutions in the world. Our proximity to U.S. and international organizations puts our scholars in a powerful position to analyze policy problems as they unfold, and it draws world leaders to our campus to address some of the most important issues of our time.

Every school of international affairs bridges the theory and practice of foreign policy. At GW's Elliott School of International Affairs, we don't need bridges; we have sidewalks.

REVOLT!

The Next Great Transformation from Kleptocracy Capitalism to Libertarian Socialism through Counter Ideology, Societal Education,
& Direct Action

By John Asimakopoulos
Foreword Peter McLaren

"A welcome return to the center stage of political discourse—and action—for the working class, and class consciousness. A must read for everyone that actually takes working-class self-determination seriously." —Ramsey Kanaan, PM Press

"A must-read book for all those interested in real change and social justice stripped bare of rhetoric and fantasy." —Sarat Colling, Political Media Review

"Machine-breakers were once threatened with the death penalty if they took direct action against the systems of production that reduced them to poverty. Kleptocracy capitalism describes a similar juxtaposition: the facilitation of systematic corporate exploitation running alongside policies which criminalise individuals who steal in order to live. John Asimakopoulos' critique draws inspiration from the history of working-class activism and, in presenting a clear and accessible analysis of the system's operation, he also calls for direct action to combat it, passionately giving voice to a popular and deeply held view—that the status quo must be challenged."

—Dr. Ruth Kinna, Editor, Anarchist Studies, UK

"In our increasingly crisis-ridden world, where the global working class is rediscovering its spine, we need visions of vastly different worlds to aspire to. And these visions must be linked to critiques of the existing society. Asimakopoulos combines these tasks in his latest book, Revolt! This book is recommended reading for anyone sickened by an increasingly violent, volatile, and boring status quo."

—Dr. Deric Shannon, Transformative Radio

ABOUT THE BOOK: Asimakopoulos develops a theory to action model for working class movement building toward societies based on direct democracy. Revolt! analyzes the Great Recession showing neoliberal globalization is intensifying capitalism's contradictions resulting in perpetual crises and collapse. Reviewing the labor and civil rights movements Asimakopoulos argues social justice can only be achieved through a new movement which, short of the immediate overthrow of capitalism, can obtain with direct action specific working class victories that will set in motion transformative change.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR: John Asimakopoulos, is Full Professor of Sociology at the City University of New York and executive director of the Transformative Studies Institute (TSI), an educational think tank. He has advanced degrees in and has taught sociology, political science, and economics resulting in a unique interdisciplinary perspective. His students include undergraduates and graduates from diverse ethnic, economic, and educational backgrounds who honor him for over 20 years with the highest teaching evaluations. His research is focused on social movements, critical theory, and international political economy. Asimakopoulos is author of The Accumulation of Freedom (2012), Social Structures of Direct Democracy (forthcoming Brill), many journal articles, and is editor in chief of Theory in Action, an interdisciplinary peer-reviewed journal. Email: jasimakopoulos@transformativestudies.org

USC Price

Sol Price School of Public Policy

Shaping the World since 1929

The USC Sol Price School of Public Policy has defined excellence and innovation in public affairs education for 85 years. Ranked 6th nationwide among 266 schools of public affairs, the school is dedicated to teaching and research that advances society through better democratic governance, more effective social policy, and sustainable urban development. Graduates shape our world as leaders in government, nonprofit agencies, and the private sector.

The Price School integrates the strategic and intellectual problem-solving resources of six primary areas of expertise: urban planning, real estate development, public policy, public administration, nonprofit leadership and management, and health care policy and management. Its students learn first-hand to reach across disciplines, sectors, and geographic boundaries to solve some of society's most critical challenges.

LEADING RESEARCH

Price research engages in real-world problem-solving — both here and abroad — on issues involving health policy and economics, collaborative governance, environment and sustainability, housing policy, the role of nonprofits and philanthropy, mass emergencies and terrorism, economic development, inequality and equity, transportation, immigration, and globalization, among many others.

GLOBAL REACH

The Price School's international outreach began in the 1940s and today boasts formal collaborations with premier universities, institutions, and organizations across five continents.

SOCIETAL IMPACT

Price School faculty advise members of Congress and federal agencies, head commissions, and provide expert information to the national news media on a daily basis. Their research often is cited by elected and appointed officials at all levels.

"The imperative of today's challenges dictates that solutions will be obtained only if we reach across disciplines, across the public, private and nonprofit spheres, and across local, national and international boundaries. The Price School's faculty, students, and alumni do exactly that in fulfilling this imperative and shaping our world for the better."

Theory in Action is an international peer reviewed journal in its 7th year published quarterly by the independent Transformative Studies Institute (TSI), a non-profit educational think tank committed to academic freedom, social justice, and scholar-activism.

•BREADTH OF SCOPE IN PROGRESSIVE THINKING – Theory in Action is a forum for research on the interconnections between theory and action that promotes social justice, broadly defined. While valuing radical and unconventional ideas, the journal does not privilege any particular theoretical tradition or approach. We are interested in how theory can inform activism to promote equality and democracy.

•AUDACIOUS – It seeks research that 'conventional' journals would reject because they are too radical or break with prior molds. We welcome ALL scholarship and seek to transform reactionary elitist academia into a space of true independent thought without retaliations, reprisals, or the compartmentalization of knowledge.

•EXTENSIVE EXPOSURE – Theory in Action is available in hundreds of libraries all over the world. Your work will reach a wide community of academics, professionals, and activists, across a range of relevant disciplines.

•HIGH VISIBILITY via our online platform and partners such as EBSCO/H.W. # MEETINGS AND RECEPTIONS

BUSINESS MEETINGS:

Many groups hold meetings and receptions at the APSA Annual Meeting, and most are open to all members. Business meetings are general member meetings that are open to all Association members unless the title clearly indicates that the meeting is for a specific group (e.g. editorial board).

APSA Organized Section: All attendees regardless of membership in a section are invited to attend section business meetings and to learn more about the work of sections.

Related Group: Independent professional groups with persistent organizational structure and minimum membership can organize a business meeting.

APSA Committee Meetings: Generally working meetings of committees are considered closed to attendees. Attendees should first consult with a committee chair about the possibility of attending.

RECEPTIONS:

2015 Program Theme Statement

"Diversity" is a pervasive concept in political science and in contemporary political discourse. While some may assume that "diversity" refers to demographic heterogeneity (primarily), there is, in fact, a tremendous range of diversity in the political world and in the ways that the discipline of political science studies the world. These diversities have different levels of salience and take on different meanings across contexts and over time. We observe diversity of inquiry across the discipline: in the nature of politics and exercise of power; in social identities and interests, in political and governmental institutions and political processes, and, of course, in the varied methods used to analyze these phenomena.

We seek to reconsider and reflect on these various diversities: for instance, which diversities receive and/or should receive scholarly attention, and why; how do we define, conceptualize, and include diversities in the issues we address and the methods we employ; and what are the theoretical, empirical, and normative implications of various diversities and how we analyze them? We encourage papers and panels that engage these and other dimensions of the diversities attendant in the study of politics.

In normative political theory, we may, for example, want to ask, are the existing categories stipulating diverse approaches, temporalities and geographical sources of theory most useful in advancing knowledge. Regarding the methods by which political science seeks to address its subject matter, to what extent are diverse methodologies a desirable goal for the discipline? Or, are some methods almost always more appropriate than others, given the objectives of the discipline?

In international relations, we continue to observe a great deal of diversity across nations, despite the deepening of globalization and the frequent cross-national diffusion of policies and behaviors. While the weight of the global economy is shifting with the economic rise of large, middle-income countries (the so-called BRICS), the consequences of this shift for political outcomes remain to be seen. Under what conditions, for example, will global economic institutions reform their structures and decision-making? For scholars of comparative politics, diversities persist within countries, within regions and over time. Despite the spread of democracy to many parts of the world, mixed and authoritarian regimes remain in – or have returned to – many nations. What are the implications of this institutional variation for the quality of governance, for citizens' well-being and, for economic outcomes?

The United States has a long legacy of grappling with diversity of various sorts: witness historical concerns about 'factions,' a past subordinate status for African slaves and native Americans; an early commitment to religious freedom; and an identity grounded in a "national of immigrants," among others. These legacies continue to shape, and are shaped by America's increasing racial/ethnic diversity as manifested in public opinion and voting behavior, and public policies channeled through institutions with different goals and structures, such as separation of powers and federalism, which both embed and reflect diversities.

Each of these diversities, singularly and in their frequently vast and intricate interconnections, provide both reasons and intellectual grounds for reconsidering diversities as inherent, important and worthy of reconsideration across the fields, substantive concerns, and methods of our discipline.
